AUTHOR'S NOTES

It is Max's change in stature and the nature of his gestures and confidence that fuels the comedy and makes the deception successful. When Max tries to impersonate Tito, he is emulating everything about the man that he admires so greatly: Tito's size, his big heart, and his grandeur as an opera star. If Max is shorter than Tito (which is sometimes the case in the productions that I've seen) Max can wear lifts in his boots to make himself taller. The crux of the play is that Max is a shy soul who admires Tito, and when he gets the chance of a lifetime to emulate his hero in front of an adoring audience – and in front of the woman he loves – he takes the bit in his teeth, shows the world that there is more inside him than meets the eye, and changes his life.

My plays often do best when they are cast from the world of musical comedy. In casting the roles of Tito and Max, the actors should be able to sing to some degree to carry off the duet in the first act. Of course a fine singer in either role is all to the good. But provided that the actors have basically good voices, vocal coaching should do the trick. Because the songs are performed karaoke-style, using the musical accompaniment provided by Samuel French, the illusion of voices of operatic quality can easily be pulled off, particularly in light of the power of the music involved. This has certainly been the lesson of the productions of Tenor to date. All that said, my greatest hope is that everyone who performs a part in Lend Me A Tenor, be it onstage or back stage, behind the scenes or front of house, finds great joy in the experience.

ACT ONE

Scene 1

(An elegant suite in a first-rate hotel in Cleveland, Ohio. Early afternoon on a Saturday in September, 1934.)

(Two rooms: a sitting room stage right and a bedroom stage left with a connecting door that swings open into the bedroom. Up center in each room is a door to the corridor. In the sitting room, a large window [facing a street, several stories below] and a door to the kitchenette. In the bedroom, two more doors, both along the outside wall, one [upstage] to the closet, the other [downstage] to the bathroom. Six doors in all.)

(The furniture consists, at a minimum, of a sofa, pouf, radio and coffee table in the sitting room; and a bed and bureau in the bedroom.)

(As the house lights go down, we hear music: a recording of “La Donna e Mobile” from Verdi’s Rigoletto, sung thrillingly by a world-class tenor.)

(When the lights come up, MAGGIE, late twenties, pretty and quirky, is alone onstage, sitting on the pouf in the sitting room. She listens rapturously to the music, which by now is coming from the radio [and now sounds scratchy as an old recording]. She is entirely caught up in the sensual sound of the tenor’s voice. She sways to the music and mouths the words.)

(After several seconds, MAX, mid-thirties and rumpled, enters the sitting room from the corridor. He wears glasses. He also wears a scarf, indicating that he’s just been outdoors. He enters hurriedly, with urgency.)

(He looks around the room, confirming in an instant that TITO isn't there.)

MAX. (over the music) Maggie – !

MAGGIE. Shhh!

MAX. Did he call?!

MAGGIE. No. Now will you wait!

(MAX sighs. He looks at his watch. Then he notices MAGGIE's reaction to the music; she's swaying in rapture. The aria ends and MAGGIE falls backward)

RADIO ANNOUNCER. The magnificent voice of Tito Merelli, brought to you in honor of his live appearance this evening with the Cleveland Grand Opera Company-

(MAX turns off the radio.)

MAX. He wasn't on the train.

MAGGIE. Oh my God. He is so wonderful. When he does that last note, I almost can't breathe.

MAX. Maggie, he wasn't there!

(The phone rings. MAX grabs it.)

Hello?!...No, sir, I couldn't find him.

SAUNDERS. (through the phone) God dammit! Where the hell is he?!

MAX. (to MAGGIE) It's your father. (into the phone) I don't know! I looked everywhere. I asked the conductor. I had him paged. I – I – I'm sorry, I just –

(the sound of SAUNDERS hanging up)

Sir?...Sir? (MAX hangs up) He's gonna kill me.

MAGGIE. He will not. He'd have nobody to yell at. At least nobody who takes it the way you do.

MAX. Maggie, the man is two hours late! The rehearsal starts in ten minutes!

MAGGIE. He'll be here, Max. This is Tito Merelli. He's a genius. They just don't think like other people.

MAX. So what are you saying? He's a grown man and he can't tell time?

MAGGIE. I'm just not worried, okay? (pause) Oh, Max, just think of it. Tonight. The curtain rises and he walks onstage. And suddenly there's nothing else in the world but that...that voice.

(pause)

MAX. I can sing too, you know.

MAGGIE. Oh, Max – (She laughs out loud.)

MAX. I can! What are you – “Oh, Max.”

MAGGIE. You don't sing like Tito Merelli.

MAX. Not yet. Okay?

MAGGIE. You don't.

MAX. In your opinion. It's a matter of taste.

MAGGIE. It is not! I wish you wouldn't fool yourself. He's a star, Max. He sings all over the world. He's in Life magazine!

MAX. So is Mussolini.

MAGGIE. And he's very sensitive.

MAX. How do you know that?

(Beat. She realizes she's caught.)

MAGGIE. (casually) Because I met him. Last year.

MAX. You did? You never told me that.

MAGGIE. It was no big thing. When I was in Italy with Daddy, we went to La Scala and he was in Aida. Then afterwards we went backstage and...well, there he was, all by himself, behind the curtain. He was wearing a sort of...loincloth and his whole body was pouring with sweat. Anyway, he looked up and saw us and do you know what he did, Max. He kissed my palms.

MAX. Yeah. So what?

MAGGIE. It was romantic.

MAX. He's Italian! They kiss everything!

MAGGIE. Fine, forget it.

MAX. Meatballs. Cheese. Cold cuts.

MAGGIE. Max –

MAX. If it moves, they kiss it.

MAGGIE. Max!

MAX. So what else happened?

MAGGIE. Nothing. (pause) Of any importance.

MAX. Something else happened?

MAGGIE. Not really.

MAX. Something sort of happened.

MAGGIE. It wasn't important.

MAX. What happened!

MAGGIE. It was nothing! Oh – ! (reluctantly, embarrassed) ...I fainted.

MAX. You fainted?

MAGGIE. It must have been the heat and all the excitement. I remember thinking suddenly, my God, it's like an oven back here. And we were talking and he sort of... stared right at me, and then I...blackened out.

MAX. Oh great. I mean this is terrific. My fiancée meets this – this sweaty Italian guy and she keels over.

MAGGIE. From the heat! And I'm not your fiancée, Max.

MAX. Wait a minute. Did I ask you to marry me or not? Huh? Remember that? What did you – you black out during the proposal?

MAGGIE. I heard it, Max, and I said no.

MAX. You said you'd think about it.

MAGGIE. (taking his hand) Max. I'm just not ready yet. I want something special first. Something wonderful and romantic.

MAX. I'm not romantic? I don't believe this. What do you call a rowboat at three a.m., huh? Moonlight shimmering on the water. Nobody for miles.

MAGGIE. You lost the oars.

MAX. But it was fun! It turned out fun!

MAGGIE. We spent thirty hours in a rowboat, Max.

MAX. That's not the point!

MAGGIE. I haven't had any flings, Max.

(MAGGIE spots the key to the room on the table next to her. Without them seeing it, she picks up the key and takes it with her, with her handbag.)

MAGGIE. (at the door, ignoring MAX) See you later...Daddy.

(She exits to the corridor, closing the door behind her.

MAX feels like a crumb.)

SAUNDERS. I've got a thousand of Cleveland's so-called cognoscenti arriving at the theatre in six hours in black tie, a thirty-piece orchestra, twenty-four chorus, fifteen stagehands and eight principals. Backstage, I have approximately fifty pounds of rotting shrimp mayonnaise which, if consumed, could turn the Gala Be-A-Sponsor Buffet into a mass murder. All I don't have is a tenor. Time.

MAX. One-fifteen. (pause) I'm – I'm really sorry, sir. I wish there was something I could do to help.

SAUNDERS. It's not your fault, Max. I wish it was. The question now is what to do if that irresponsible Italian jackass doesn't arrive.

MAX. I – I have an idea about that, actually.

SAUNDERS. You do?

MAX. Yeah. I mean, sort of.

SAUNDERS. Well, spit it out, Max.

MAX. The thing is – I mean, I was just – just thinking that – well – I mean – I could do it.

SAUNDERS. Do what?

MAX. Sing it. Pagliacci. Sort of...step in. You see, I – I've been to all the rehearsals and I know the part and I – I mean, I could do it. I know I could.

SAUNDERS. Pagliacci? The Clown of Tragedy?

MAX. Yes, sir.

SAUNDERS. Pagliacci, Max. He's huge. He's larger than life. He loves with a passion that rocks the heavens. His jealousy is so terrible that we tremble with irrational fear for our very lives. His tragedy is the fate of tortured greatness, facing the black and gaping abyss of insensible nothingness. It isn't you, Max.

MAX. It – it could be. I mean, if I had the chance.

SAUNDERS. (turning directly front, addressing the audience):

“Ladies and gentlemen. May I have your attention, please. I regret to inform you that Mr. Tito Merelli, the greatest tenor of our generation, scheduled to make his American debut with the Cleveland Grand Opera Company in honor of our tenth anniversary season, is regrettably indisposed this evening, but...BUT!...I have the privilege to announce that the leading role tonight will be sung by a somewhat gifted amateur making his very first appearance on this, or indeed any other stage, our company's very own factotum, gopher and all-purpose dogsbody...Max!” Do you see the problem?

MAX. I guess so.

SAUNDERS. Old women would be trampled to death in the stampede up the aisles.

MAX. I see what you mean.

SAUNDERS. Time.

MAX. One-twenty.

(A depressed silence. SAUNDERS picks up a grape and starts chewing. Then he realizes and spits it out and starts stamping on it in his fury. Meanwhile, the phone rings. MAX picks it up.)

Hello? What? Could you speak more slowly, please.

SAUNDERS. If it's Julia, tell her she can take the shrimp and stuff it up her –

MAX. (to SAUNDERS) Sir! It's him! He's in the lobby!

(SAUNDERS runs to the phone and grabs it.)

SAUNDERS. (into the phone, all charm) Signor Merelli! Benvenuto a Cleveland! I will be down immediamente. Presto. (He hangs up.) All right, Max. This is it. You have your instructions. Key word, Max.

MAX. Glue.

SAUNDERS. Glue. You will stick to him like

MAX. glue.

SAUNDERS. and you will not let him out of your

MAX. sight.

SAUNDERS. You will drive him to the rehearsal and then drive him back. You will give him whatever he wants except

MAX. liquor and women.

SAUNDERS. At the performance, you will lead a spontaneous

MAX. standing ovation

SAUNDERS. then return him to the reception, keeping him

MAX. sober

SAUNDERS. with his hands

MAX. to himself

SAUNDERS. at which point he can

MAX. drop dead

SAUNDERS. for all we care. Good.

MAX. Good.

(Break. SAUNDERS crosses to the corridor door, pauses.)

SAUNDERS. Max!

MAX. Sir?

SAUNDERS. Get rid of that fruit bowl.

(SAUNDERS exits, pulling the door closed behind him. Simultaneously, MAGGIE enters quickly through the bedroom/corridor door and closes it quietly. Then she darts to the bathroom and enters it, slamming the door behind her in her haste. As MAX is entering the kitchenette with the fruit, he hears the door slam and stops, puzzled. Still holding the fruit, he walks into the bedroom and looks around. He opens the closet door. No one there. He goes to the bathroom door, opens it, and MAGGIE, who was holding the doorknob inside, is yanked into the room.)

MAX. (horrified) Maggie!

MAGGIE. Is he here?

MAX. No! But he's coming up!

MAGGIE. (excited) Oh, Max!

MAX. Maggie, do you realize what this looks like? I mean, waiting for him in the bathroom!

(a knock at the sitting room/corridor door)

He's here!

MAGGIE. (in raptures) Oh, Max!

MAX. With your father!

MAGGIE. 'Bye, Max.

(She steps back into the bathroom and closes the door.)

MAX. Maggie!

SAUNDERS. (offstage) Ma-ax. The door is locked, Max.

MAX. Coming! (He heads for the sitting room. Stops.) Fruit!
(Which he is still holding. Back to the bathroom.) Maggie!
Door!

(MAGGIE comes out, annoyed.)

MAGGIE. Max!

MAX. Fruit! (he hands it to her)

MAGGIE. (touched, accepting it) Thank you, Max.

(She steps back in and MAX slams the door.)

SAUNDERS. (offstage) Ma-ax! Open the door, please!

MAX. Coming!

(He rushes into the sitting room, closing the connecting door. At the corridor door he stops abruptly. Adjusts himself. Opens the door. SAUNDERS enters.)

SAUNDERS. (offstage – then on) MAX!!

MAX. Hi.

SAUNDERS. (glaring murderously, then smiling broadly): Thank you.

(He steps aside, permitting MARIA and TITO MERELLI to enter the sitting room. MARIA is the Sophia Loren type:
